Excerpt from Dolores, Vol. 1 of 3 Day must indeed be deeply scored by pain and care. All nature is awake; soft scent of flowers, sweet song of birds fill the air, not with the drowsy lulling languor of Summer time, but with the keen quickening vigour of awakening life and energy. An afternoon when one thanks God for life, when one's heart throbs with a sudden choking pity for the eyes that are closed to all this fair brightness, for the ears that no longer hear those sweet glad sounds, for the lips that are mute, ah, God! To us who once watched so wistfully for their unclosing. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
