Not illustrated. 1894 Excerpt: .Monroe to the society at Enfield in 1817, Job made this speech of welcome so characteristic of Shaker plainness: I, Job Bishop, welcome James Monroe to our habitation. One of the best known of the Canterbury Shakers and one to whom the prosperity of the family has been largely due was David Parker, for many years a trustee and leading member. He was chiefly noted for his keen and honorable business instincts and for his defence of his people when the state legislature proposed to investigate their habits and morals. David s efforts did much to prevent so unjust a proceeding. The Canterbury society formerly consisted of three large families, the upper, the middle, and the lower, or church, family, each one being entirely independent of the others. The middle family has passed out of existence, and at the present Dorothy A. Durqin. day the upper...
